The School of Education at Fayetteville State University launched a new academic journal in November 2013. The Journal of Research Initiatives (JRI) is a peer-reviewed journal which contributes to disseminating current research in the fields of K-12 and higher education through quantitative, qualitative, and mixed methodological approaches. The journal is published biannually in the Fall/Winter and Spring/Summer and openly welcomes your scholarly research. JRI also provides a forum for occasional special issues on notable topics in education. We released our first issue in December 2013 and are busy putting together the next issue due in late July 2014.

We are accepting new submissions for upcoming issues. If you have an article or material for consideration please visit our website at: <http://jroci01a.uncfdu.edu/>. You will find submission guidelines and related material. Your published articles will be available at <http://jroci01a.uncfdu.edu/> and <http://digitalcommons.uncfdu.edu/jri/>.

JRI also in need of peer-reviewers. If you are an academic or professional in the fields of K-12 or higher education, please consider serving on the editorial review board. Submit your name, institution/agency, background, and the areas of your interest directly to me at this email address: lwilson-jones@uncfdu.edu.

The journal welcomes articles, research best practices, book reviews and commentaries, in keeping with editorial policy. This inaugural issue provided a platform for researchers and educators to new research and developments in the field of education. JRI areas of interest include, but are not limited to, the following topics:

educational leadership philosophy of education learning and teaching technology in education emerging issues in leadership theory of education pedagogy gender issues in higher education administration and supervision curriculum studies

special education teacher education

If you are interested in submitting a research manuscript that has not been previously published, please send your manuscript via the online submission system: <http://jroci01a.uncfdu.edu/>. Click on the journal link to review guidelines for submitting online manuscripts.
